Dear PoliceOne Subscriber,

Few forces are impacting LE like video, which is shaping policy, training, community relations, and creating major tech challenges even as it solves problems. Throughout 2017, we will be examining various facets of the topic in our ambitious four-part coverage series, "Policing in the Video Age."

Check out the first part of our yearlong coverage series, which features several articles about the video technologies shaping policing. Later this year, we will address major topics like solving the evidence management challenge, training and policy in a recorded world, and the future of video tech in policing.

Watch for regular installments in this special series, which aims to help officers and agencies navigate the complexity of policing in the age of video.
